

"A New Generation on a Firm Foundation"

What a joy to be reminded that you're going where God wants you to go...

People responding to the message

As we left on our fall tour this September we once again called on many of you to pray that God would help us cross the border into the United States. Only days before we were to leave we found out that we had been denied the R1 visas we felt it was necessary to have to minister in the United States. With no time to look into any other type of visa, we headed out with only letters from each church we would visit and the prayers of God's people. Our border crossing was so smooth we almost laughed! Hallelujah!

A prayer partner of ours had been up much of the night before our crossing praying not only for a hassle free crossing but for enough peace that we could rest that night. He certainly answered! While she was praying God gave her a vision of two land masses divided by water and a vehicle arriving at the water. Then the water dried up like the Red Sea and we crossed on dry ground. That vision so encouraged me because I realized that our smooth crossing was only because of God's intervention. This just confirmed to me so strongly that we were doing exactly what God wanted us to do. What a joy to be reminded that you're going where God wants you to go and He's helping you get there.

We felt strong opposition in the spirit realm at our first stop (Lake Village, IL). We were particularly attacked in our marriage relationship, and Lloyd felt heaviness much of the time. We finally came together to take authority over it while praying with the pastor and his wife who were also really struggling. We all felt the cloud lift.

While in Indianapolis we visited with a couple who told us this story about the last time we had visited their church. Here is her testimony;

This was the second time Lloyd has preached his message of freedom at our church. The first time I was delivered from a sin that I had wrestled with for many years. I've had victory over that sin ever since.

The most recent time he spoke, God was talking with me about my struggle with over eating. I felt like this paled in comparison with my previous struggle as well as the things that others were seeking freedom from that night, but I was determined to be fully free, not just mostly free.

The amazing part came during the prayer time. The lady that came to pray with me was someone I had a bit of a strained relationship. We had inadvertently offended each other a few months prior, While we both had genuinely apologized, our relationship was shallow. God had been speaking to me about this relationship just a few weeks before Lloyd spoke and I had determined the Lord wanted me to deepen the relationship by talking with her about my own life. Of course God knew what he was doing. Here I was in a position to do just that, confess my struggle with a lady that I loved mind you, but I wasn't sure how she was going to react.

God worked a two-fold miracle that night, setting me on road to full freedom from anything that would try to have power over me, even food, and restoring a strained relationship to a new friendship. We are continuing to encourage one another to eat healthy.

NEWS AND PRAISE REPORTS:

Two years ago when we ministered in Kenosha, WI a young tough looking teenage boy came to the altar for salvation. This October we visited that church and found him still serving the Lord and involved in the church. We are never quite sure what is taking place at the altar as we stand there and watch people pray. It's such an encouragement to us to hear that a lasting change was made.

Two weeks before the end of our tour Cathy's grandfather passed away at the age of 100. We packed the whole family in the van and made the 9 hour drive home from Wisconsin to attend his funeral. He was a much loved and respected man with over 300 people at his funeral. What an honour to be called his grandchild. He was the first of 5 generations of ministers of the Gospel and, we believe, many more to come. What a heritage!

We got back to Portage, WI in time to do a meeting for couples on the Saturday, see the altar packed on Sunday morning with people responding to the freedom message, and for Lloyd to speak to the men on Sunday night. We were also able to spend an evening praying with a couple who had been struggling and see God work in them in a mighty way.

We are finding the need is so great but also that God is equipping us to rise to the challenge and giving us more opportunities to see people set free.
