

Winter 2018

This fall we've begun travelling as a smaller group consisting of only 3 members. We took a short trip to Illinois and Indiana before we headed to Australia for a month. There we were received very well and heard many encouraging reports. The dynamics are changing but the message is still burning strong in our hearts as we continue to see lives transformed.

Lloyd, Cathy and Elise singing in Queensland, Australia

After one of our services a lady told us that she had been living with a measure of freedom but had recently fallen back into her bondage. She said how much it meant to her to hear this message right now. She had been at a low point in her life, feeling worn out, which made it easy to slip back into her old ways; maybe needing another layer of healing from the hurt that caused her to medicate to begin with. She recognized these are the times we need to reach out for help, and we need the strength community brings. She asked God to lead her to the right accountability partner and she felt like she made a good connection with someone who is willing to meet on a regular basis, so they will be holding each other up.

In Australia after Cathy talked about living with an addict, a lady came up to her and said our visit was very timely. She had just recently had to tell her boyfriend how his addiction was affecting their relationship, which was something Cathy had mentioned was a part of setting good boundaries. The woman was encouraged by hearing about Cathy's journey and thanked her for sharing.

So, as we enter the Christmas season, we are so thankful and encouraged at what God is doing. We again thank you for your giving which has helped make it possible for us to continue.

WHAT HAS GOD DONE?

This past weekend we ministered in Plainwell, MI. There the pastor has been in recovery from addiction for 6 years. He has received help from many different ministries, each bringing a measure of freedom, but after hearing Lloyd's message said:

“That's the clearest message I've heard on how to conquer sin.”

Here's what one pastor's wife said:

“Keep up the good work the Lord has put before you! As someone who was set free from much fear as a result of God using you in ministry, I feel it would be robbing others of their freedom in Christ if your work for the Lord was halted. The Manos family loves you guys!”

Volunteer(s) wanted

One of you reading this newsletter right now might be thinking, "I'd love to support New Generation but I've not got the resources to do it financially. You could volunteer if you have a computer, internet and some time. Lloyd has a desire to help leaders of churches get free. So many pastors and other leaders struggle with sinful habits, hang-ups, addiction, bondage and strongholds. If they are not able to find freedom for themselves, how will they be able to teach freedom to their followers? The process of getting into denominational gatherings to share his story is a slow and arduous task. If there is someone reading this newsletter who is willing to volunteer to help research: a) who books speakers for these gatherings b) when the gatherings take place, we would be very thankful.

Elise in Australia!

The most Easterly point

Pray with us for...

1. Deanna and Drew Fraser.
2. The mind of Christ as the world changes so rapidly around us.
3. Families we know that are struggling this season.
4. Elise as she adjusts to being the only kid on the road with mom and dad.

Praise God with us for...

1. Kirsten and Evan both got jobs and are working to save for higher education.
2. God's provision. Even though we weren't booked too much we were able to stay current financially.
3. One new financial partner this month.
